L'Occitane x Claire Luxton

Claire Luxton is a UK-based multidisciplinary artist working with photography, painting, poetry and installation. After receiving a BFA from Goldsmiths, University of London, Claire created a challenging series of self-portraits, pushing her emotional and physical boundaries by becoming both the subject matter and the materiality.

We have worked with L'Occitane to install a new piece of public art in the heart of Regent Street, to give something special to the local community during their daily walks. We know how much public art is important, especially during lockdown when museums and Galleries are closed, so it's a dream to team up with L'Occitane and be able to provide an art project that can be enjoyed by everyone, with the magical work of Claire Luxton. Claire Luxton's work brings hope, healing and peace, the beautiful stained glass butterflies covering the store windows and Claire's self-portrait are pure magic!
